SO DECEPTIVE

Many Barre People Fail to Realize the Seriousness.

Backache is so deceptive. It comes and goes—keeps you guessing. Learn the cause—then cure it. Nine times out of ten it comes from the kidneys. That's why Doan's Kidney Pills cure it. Cure every kidney ail from backache to diabetes.

Here's a Barre case to prove it: John Byrnes, shoemaker, formerly living at 62 Sumner St., Barre, Vt., says: "I never was much of a hand to take medicine, and so I never had much faith in any remedy until I procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at E. A. Drown's drug store. I was suffering at the time from a dull pain in my back and such sharp twinges that if I attempted to rise after stooping I had to put my hands to my knees and gradually regain an erect position. I could hardly believe that a medicine could make such a change in a man as Doan's Kidney Pills did in me. Two boxes cured the backache that had annoyed me so long, and I could get around without the sharp twinges in the small of my back or any discomfort at all. I hope others troubled as I was will use Doan's Kidney Pills on my recommendation, for I know they will have no cause to regret it if they do."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Health in the Canal Zone.

The high wages paid makes it a mighty temptation to our young artisans to join the force of skilled workmen needed to construct the Panama Canal. Many are restrained, however, by the fear of fever and malaria. It is the knowing ones—those who have used Electric Bitters, who go there without this fear, well knowing that they are safe from malarious influence with Electric Bitters on hand. Cures blood poison, too, biliousness, weakness and stomach, liver and kidney troubles. Guaranteed by the Red Cross Pharmacy, 50c.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

David Belasco's "The Girl of the Golden West."

"The Girl of the Golden West," written, staged and presented by David Belasco, will be the offering at the opera house on next Friday night. The play has been one of the few truly great successes in New York, continuing through the winter and spring months. It crowded the Belasco theatre at every performance until late midsummer, when the company was given a fortnight's vacation. The engagement was resumed in August and up to the very time of the company's departure from New York, the nightly audiences were as large and as commendatory as those during the first weeks of the play in the metropolis. This was followed later in the season with four weeks at the Academy of Music to record-breaking audiences.

"The Girl of the Golden West" is a four-act play of California in the days of '49, written by Mr. Belasco and produced in person by him. The majority of dramatic efforts whose scenes are laid in the far west, especially at a time more than twenty years ago, have exaggerated the characteristics of the region in those days, and thus left an impression of unmanly wildness and fearsome disrespect for all law. The figures in such connection have appealed only to the juvenile mind. In "The Girl of the Golden West," the mastery of Belasco is probably more plainly shown than in anything else that has come from his pen. The roughness that distinguished life in the Sierra Nevada during the gold fever period is truthfully shown, indeed, but the poetry which surcharged the atmosphere in which adventurous spirits such as Jack Rance roach their highest development, has also been used as a tonic fluid. Thus while none of the strength of the crude characters and the time is lost, their attractiveness is accentuated and made doubly impressive.

DAVID BELASCO,

Author of "The Girl of the Golden West"

"The Girl of the Golden West" as a production is a wonderful feat of stagecraft. The scene shows the Sierra Nevada mountains in midwinter with a vividness that has elicited the highest praise. The scenic effects include a night storm along the mountain pass, and sunrise at the base of the hills, and there has never been anything credited to Mr. Belasco that has exceeded these in beauty and strength. Tickets now on sale.

For his third starring tour the young singing comedian Alvin Doane has selected the comic-drama "A Romance in Ireland" in which he will appear at the opera house on Saturday evening next, supported by one of the most capable companies ever sent on tour, and with a faultless production, costumes and accessories, such as is seldom seen outside of the big cities. On former tours Mr. Doane, and his manager, Mr. George W. Kenney, have demonstrated that it is their desire to give the play-going public an ideal, artistic and comprehensive production of the Irish drama by presenting the Joseph Murphy plays "Kerry Gow" and "Saum Rhu" in a manner that left a lasting impression, and established Mr. Doane as the representative Irish comedian of the decade, who combines in his attractive personality the talent of Scanlon; the grace of Mack; the sweet voice of Orlent; and the magnetism of Boucicault, and who is said to have, in the part of "Larry O'Daly" the chance of his career to play his great versatility to the utmost. "Larry" is the son of an Irish squire and a gentleman, but he has nothing of the aristocrat about him, except his appearance, and so he mingles with the peasantry and joins in their songs and dances, and their games, and is a general favorite with all, both high and low, in the county Mayo. There is a very pretty love story between "Larry" and Nora, the beautiful daughter of Squire Doyle, but the young squire almost ruins his chances with his squires by "borrowing" the latter's pet hunting mare, without permission. By the judicious use of large doses of "harney" he manages, however, to win the old man over again. There is a picturesque atmosphere of the seventeenth century with its quaint customs and fanciful garb in "A Romance in Ireland" about which is woven a clean, witty story, with a novel, interesting plot and several intensely melodramatic situations. There is no conventional "villain," but the shadows are furnished by a very human person, who confesses his fault in a very human way. Mr. Doane will sing several new and original songs.

Encouraging.

As a patroness of struggling and discouraged artists and musicians, Mrs. Pollen was not markedly successful, although she had plenty of money and a warm heart and was interested in arts and artists.

"I've brought some of my last winter's sketches to show you," said one poor young man whom she had asked to call upon her, "but I do not feel satisfied with them. They are not as good in some ways as the work I did a year ago."

"Nonsense!" cried Mrs. Pollen, with loud cheerfulness, patting him on the shoulder. "You paint just as well as you did last year—as well as you ever have. Your taste's improving—that's all!"—Youth's Companion.

YOUNG FAIRCHILD SENTENCED.

Convicted of Shooting His Young Sweetheart's Father.

Burlington, Sept. 19.—Jasper Fairchild, the young man who let the contents of a shot gun drive at a man whom he desired for a father-in-law, was taken into Chittenden county court yesterday morning and sentenced to not less than one year and a half in the house of correction.

Fairchild was indicted at the present term of county court by the grand jury for assault with a dangerous weapon with intent to kill Noah Phelps of Milton. He pleaded guilty a charge of simple assault.

The shooting had a romantic flavor. Jasper Fairchild is a youth of eighteen and last spring at Milton he became infatuated, the story goes, with Miss Gladys Phelps, aged 16. On the night of St. Patrick's day which happened to be Sunday Fairchild and Gladys were awakened from love's young dream by Noah Phelps, the girl's father, separating them on the street and giving young Mr. Fairchild to understand he was to keep away. Then he took his daughter home with him.

That evening Fairchild procured a shotgun, and taking a stand just outside the Phelps house, he aimed at a window in a room in which Mr. Phelps was sitting, and fired. The window being some distance above the ground the gun of course had to be held at an angle consequently the shot went into the wall opposite the window. The occupants of the room being somewhat back from the window nobody was injured, but they got the scare of their lives.

YOUR WORK.

Rob It of Drudgery and Give It Your Whole Ability.

No matter how humble your work may seem, do it in the spirit of an artist, of a master. In this way you lift it out of commonness and rob it of what would otherwise be drudgery.

You will find that learning to thoroughly respect everything you do and not to let it go out of your hands until it has the stamp of your approval upon it as a trademark will have a wonderful effect upon your whole character.

The quality of your work will have a great deal to do with the quality of your life. If your quality is down, your character will be down, your standard down, your ideals down.

The habit of insisting upon the best of which you are capable and of always demanding of yourself the highest, never accepting the lowest, will make all the difference between mediocrity or failure and a successful career.

If you bring to your work the spirit of an artist instead of an artisan; if you bring a burning zeal, an all absorbing enthusiasm; if you determine to put the best there is in you in everything you do, no matter what it is, you will not long be troubled with a sense of drudgery. Everything depends on the spirit we bring to the task. The right spirit makes an artist in the humblest task, while the wrong spirit makes an artisan in any calling, no matter how high.

There is a dignity, an indescribable quality of superiority, in everything we do which we thoroughly and honestly respect. There is nothing belittling or mental which has to be done for the welfare of the race.

You cannot afford to give the mere drudge, the mere leavings of your energies, to your work. The best in you is none too good for it.

It is only when we do our best, when we put joy, energy, enthusiasm and zeal into our work, that we really grow, and this is the only way we can keep our highest self respect.

We cannot think much of ourselves when we are not honest in our work—when we are not doing our level best. There is nothing which will compensate you for a loss of faith in yourself, for the knowledge of your capacity for doing bungling, dishonest work.

You have something infinitely higher in you to satisfy than to make a mere living, to get through your day's work as easily as possible—that is, your sense of the right, the demand in you to do your level best, to call out the best thing in you, to be a man, to do the square thing. This should speak so loudly in you that the mere bread and butter question, the money making question, should be insignificant in comparison.—Success Magazine.

Elements of the Universe.

Science declares that up to date the suns and planets all seem to be built up out of identical materials. We are not acquainted with any element in any of the heavenly bodies which is not to be found.

Hellum, for example, first discovered in the sun, was subsequently found on earth in the rare mineral cleveite. In the handful of earth that you pick up at your feet you may behold the contents of the universe.—New York American.
